The environment:

- The Yzerfontein residential area is surrounded by nature reserves and Green Belts are running through the town. We ask that guests always respect the environment.
- Apart from a variety of small wild animals, there are also snakes such as Puffadders and Cape Cobras during the warmer seasons and it is therefore advisable not to wander into the fynbos unattended. Should you encounter a snake, please contact the "snake catcher" on the number provided in the information book.
- At certain times of the year, such as the breeding season, ostriches could be dangerous too, rather do not approach them at any time and give them right of way – they were here first!
- Since the West Coast is an arid environment, the local communities experience water restrictions from time to time. Please help us by using water responsibly.

Pets:

- Unfortunately, we cannot welcome any pet
