The environment:

- The Yzerfontein residential area is surrounded by nature reserves and Green Belts are running through the town. We ask that guests respect the environment at all times.
- Apart from a variety of small wild animals there are also snakes such as Puffadders and Cape Cobras during the warmer seasons and it is therefore advisable not to wander into the fynbos unattended. Should you encounter a snake, please contact the “snake catcher” on the number provided in the information book.
- At certain times of the year, such as the breeding season, ostriches could be dangerous too, rather do not approach them at any time and give them right of way – they were here first!
- Due to the fact that the West Coast is an arid environment, the local communities experience water restrictions from time to time. Please help us by using water responsibly.

Pets:

- Please ensure that you have confirmation that an establishment is pet friendly, as well as how many pets and their sizes are allowed.
- When an establishment is pet friendly, an additional charge may apply to allow for additional laundry and wear and tear on the property and garden. Please bring their bedding with you and, out of courtesy for other guests, refrain from allowing them on the furniture and beds.
- Please make use of poo bags, as well as dispensers on the beach or around town and leave the garden clean upon departure. If not, a surcharge will be incurred.
- Yzerfontein Accommodation has PET OWNER CODE OF CONDUCT before arrival
